Q102. [SPLIT C] As you may or may not know, this past weekend, an 18-year-old white man shot and killed 10 people Saturday afternoon in Buffalo, New York, targeting a supermarket in the heart of a predominantly Black community. Following this mass shooting, President Biden spoke in Buffalo - below are part of his remarks. Please read the text below, and as you go through, use the green highlighter to indicate which parts you find most important.

We have to refuse to live in a country where Black people going about a weekly grocery shopping can be gunned down by weapons of war deployed in a racist cause. We have to refuse to live in a country where fear and lies are packaged for power and for profit. We must all enlist in this great cause of America. This is work that requires all of us. Presidents, politicians, commentators, citizens. None of us can stay on the sidelines.

Q103. [SPLIT D] As you may or may not know, this past weekend, an 18-year-old white man shot and killed 10 people Saturday afternoon in Buffalo, New York, targeting a supermarket in the heart of a predominantly Black community. Following this mass shooting, President Biden spoke in Buffalo - below are part of his remarks. Please read the text below, and as you go through, use the green highlighter to indicate which parts you find most important.

The venom of the haters and their weapons of war, of violence in the words and deeds of the — that stalk our streets, our stores, our schools. This venom, this violence cannot be the story of our time. We cannot allow that to happen. Look, I'm not naïve. I know tragedy will come again. It cannot be forever overcome. It cannot be fully understood either. But there are certain things we can do. We can keep assault weapons off our streets. We've done it before...We just need to have the courage to do that, to stand up.
