Key Takeaways:

- More than four in five Americans are concerned about political violence, as many associate the term with January 6th and riots.

- More say that the Republican Party is prone to violence in pushing their political agenda than the Democratic Party is.

- Three in four Americans oppose the actions of Trump supporters on January 6th, and two in three are concerned that similar events could happen in the future.

- The most concerning statements about Republican members in Congress’ response to the January 6th attack on the Capitol include assisting or encouraging the attackers, allowing white supremacist factions to play a dominant role in deciding the direction of the Republican Party, and voting against investigating what happened that day.
More Than Four in Five Are Concerned About Political Violence Today and in the Future

Democrats are slightly more likely to say they are concerned about political violence “in the future” (93% concerned) than “today” (86%), while roughly equal shares of Republicans say they are concerned about both (80% today, 79% in the future).

January 6th, Riots Define Political Violence for Many Americans

Democrats are most likely to mention “January 6th,” “white supremacy,” and “Trump,” while independents mention “riots,” “fighting,” and “protests.” Republicans also focus on “riots” and “Democrats.”

When you see or hear the phrase “political violence,” what does that mean to you?

Democrats

Indians

Republicans

“The January 6th insurrection.”

“I think back to January 6th or when Nancy [Pelosi’s] husband was attacked with a hammer.”

“I think of riots and street violence and hate crimes.”

“It means crazy MAGA people rioting.”

“BLM riots in 2020.”

“The Democrats. They support it. Like they helped make January 6 happen.”

Nationwide survey of 1,000 registered voters conducted November 30-December 4, 2023.

Trump Dominates Recollections of Efforts to Overturn Election Results in 2020

“Trump,” “corruption,” and “Republicans” are cited most often in relation to efforts to overturn the 2020 election results.

When you hear that there were efforts to overturn the election results in 2020, what do you think of?

“I think of Donald Trump being a cry baby and not accepting that he didn’t win.”

Independents

“I think of corruption in the government.”

“January 6 was a violation of the Constitution.”

Republicans

“It makes me nervous regarding the accuracy of future elections.”

“It makes me think that there was election fraud and that Joe Biden and the Democrats rigged the election.”

Nationwide survey of 1,000 registered voters conducted November 30-December 4, 2023. For more info, visit navigatorresearch.org.
Three in Four Oppose Actions of Rioters That Day; Seven in Ten Recall Watching January 6th Coverage

Democrats are most likely to say they watched “a lot” or “some” of the coverage of January 6th, while majorities across party lines oppose the actions of the Trump supporters who broke into the Capitol (including 59% of Republicans, 82% of independents, and 87% of Democrats).

As you may know, there was a joint session of Congress in January 2021 to confirm the Electoral College votes from the November 2020 presidential election. It was interrupted when the Capitol Building was stormed. How much of the coverage of these events did you watch?

Regardless of how much you have seen or heard since January 6th, 2021 about the Trump supporters who broke into the U.S. Capitol building on January 6th... Do you support or oppose the actions of the Trump supporters who broke into the Capitol building on January 6th?

About the Study

Global Strategy Group conducted public opinion surveys among a sample of 1,000 registered voters from November 30-December 4, 2023. 100 additional interviews were conducted among Hispanic voters. 75 additional interviews were conducted among Asian American and Pacific Islander voters. 100 additional interviews were conducted among African American voters. 100 additional interviews were conducted among independent voters. The survey was conducted online, recruiting respondents from an opt-in online panel vendor. Respondents were verified against a voter file and special care was taken to ensure the demographic composition of our sample matched that of the national registered voter population across a variety of demographic variables.
