You are now going to read statements from supporters and opponents of extending these health care tax credits. Please read the statements and answer the question that follows.

[SUPPORTERS' AND OPPONENTS' STATEMENTS WERE ROTATED RANDOMLY FOR RESPONDENTS.]

Supporters say that taking away these tax credits will drive up health insurance premiums by more than 50% a year, driving premiums up by $2,400 for working families. That cost hike will mean 5 million Americans lose their coverage completely. People are already struggling with the high cost of health care, and Congress shouldn't make it harder by taking away these tax credits: they should extend them, instead.

Opponents say it's fine to take away these tax credits because they are just more bloated government spending that makes the government pick up the bill for people's health care. The tax credits add nearly $34 billion to the federal deficit every year, and they are riddled with waste and fraud where people lie about their income to qualify for them. These tax credits should not be renewed, and Congress should let them expire.

Q29. Again… Do you think Congress should extend these health care tax credits or let these health care tax credits expire?
