Q47C. [SPLIT C] Which of these two approaches to immigration do you prefer the federal government pursue?

Focusing on strict enforcement and mass deportation by having ICE target all immigrants who are here illegally for deportation, with the goal of deporting millions of people each year, while investing in border security, detention centers, and increased enforcement to deter future illegal immigration.

A balanced approach that focuses on deporting those who have committed serious crimes, while still upholding American values like treating people humanely and ensuring due process as protected in the Constitution. This approach would also allow immigrants who have been working, paying taxes, and following the law to apply for legal status.
