Q19Y. As you may know, states like Texas generally redraw their Congressional map after the Census (which happens every 10 years, with the next Census happening in 2030). This rare, mid-decade effort of Texas lawmakers to redraw the state's Congressional map is meant to benefit Trump and Republicans in Congress by allowing them to pick up more seats and pad their slim majority in the House. After learning more, do you support or oppose Texas Republican lawmakers redrawing the state's Congressional map?

Our political system is already broken: if Texas goes through with this redrawing of the state's Congressional map, other states will follow suit and further polarize and harm our democracy	26	26	29	25	27	29	26	23
The redrawing of these district lines is going to take power away from voters of color in Texas, a state that is already the most racially gerrymandered in the country	12	13	14	10	26	14	8	12
