Q74. Which of these two approaches to immigration do you prefer the federal government pursue?

Focusing on strict enforcement and mass deportation by having ICE target all immigrants who are here illegally for deportation, with the goal of deporting millions of people each year, while investing in border security, detention centers, and increased enforcement to deter future illegal immigration.

A balanced approach that fixes our broken immigration system by focusing on deporting those who have committed serious crimes and securing our borders while still treating people humanely and respecting people's basic rights without fear of violence from ICE agents. This approach would also expand legal pathways and allow immigrants who have been working, paying taxes, and following the law to apply for legal status.
